Dear Governor Cuomo,

I'm a successful CEO of a digital ad agency in NYC. As a businessman and entrepreneur I'm troubled by Mr. Lawskey's proposed Bitcoin regulations. While I do think we need some structure, I think many of his rules go too far and will stifle innovation and prevent NY from being a leader in this new and growing field. He was appointed by you, so I hope you will take the time to reign in some of his overreach before it affects NY's reputation negatively. It's already making our city look bad in terms of being anti-innovation.

Thanks,

Chris Wilson
