Dana V. Syracuse,

Having seen the Bitlicense proposal I am writing to ask that you do not move hastily with regulation. The current proposal will stifle innovation that has the potential to be an enormous growth driver in the US economy. Crypto-currencies raise issues that are too important and too complex to be simply squashed without adequate time for understanding. I have spent my entire career in technology and I have never seen so much potential in a technology since the internet. I urge you to consider the proposal of the Bitcoin Foundation to engage the community and work towards a middle ground that is acceptable.

Sincerely,
Daniel Barbosa
