

[REDACTED]

[REDACTED]

[REDACTED]

Hi,
This message is for Dana Syracuse. I just wanted to voice my opinion as a American citizen.

In regards to the bitlicense I would like to thank you for working on incorporating it into a legal framework.

I would please ask you to reconsider some of the restrictions that require start ups or small entrepreneurs to comply immediately. Please come up with a on-ramp period, a low-cost method to register, and limit the barriers to entry (for example it should be easy and simple for someone to register and create a crypto-token, they should not have to deal with anything that requires high cost or high time or going to jail as long as they register with their legal identification). Remember this is just open source software, like the internet, and should not be regulated such that it hinders interstate commerce.