

[REDACTED]

[REDACTED]

[REDACTED]

It's a shame to see the USA become authoritarian.

It's a shame to see that other countries such as the former Soviet Union have lower taxes and more freedom.

I have moved my family to Switzerland, and I am employing programmers there instead of the USA. And since I moved here, I keep meeting Americans who have given up their citizenship. Why do you suppose that is?

To comment on the proposed regulation: It isn't going to work anyway. This is the 21st century, not the 20th. The Internet will simply route around the damage. And the proposal is so bad, so authoritarian, so out-of-bounds, that what it really does is reveal what kind of people you actually are, that you believe you have the right to lord it over your fellow man, in what used to be the freest country on earth. Thankfully Bitcoin is going to stop you, long before you are ever able to stop it.

--

Chris Odom ("Fellow Traveler")

[REDACTED]
Co-founder and CTO, Monetas

Creator and Lead Developer, Open-Transactions

The world's first decentralized system for financial and legal transactions.