To Whom it may concern,

The proposed BitLicense scheme is yet another Orwellian overreach by your government in the same vein as domestic spying and so on.

The tendency to implement broad sweeping policies, that assume everyone is a criminal, must be resisted because they undermine privacy, erode freedom, and they don't work. Instead, please focus on the criminals and the fraudsters.

Meanwhile, the real criminals and money launderers continue to work on Wall Street substantially isolated from the consequences of the 2008 financial crisis that they caused. Until you throw these crooks in jail and seize their assets like you would for any other Mafioso, nothing is going to change and you and I are just a bunch of "Muppets".

Sincerely,

Mike Alford
