

[REDACTED]

[REDACTED]

[REDACTED]

[REDACTED]

[REDACTED]

This is another attempt to sneak in a law further abridging our privacy rights, using the cover of "protecting" us from our own stupidity. I am capable of protecting myself, & I strongly resent this further underhanded attempt to further steal away my rights to privacy. New York.

If you were not trying to sneak a bad law in place, you would want and be trying to ensure an active dialogue so that all sides had a chance and were encouraged to take part in the conversation.

This is as contrary to the valued American Way of Life as the McCarthy hearings of the 1950's were. And as insidious. New York as a city and a state has too much influence over what happens in other states to do something this incredibly short sighted and just plain stupid.

Marl Steinbach
[REDACTED]