

[REDACTED]

---

The current revisions do not allow for virtual currency ATM's to operate without onerous restrictions.

Specifically, the requirement that all ATM users submit identity information similar to an online cryptocurrency exchange.

For transactions under a certain amount, (for example, a few hundred dollars) there should be no requirement to register and submit to ID verification. This would not only be an affront to user privacy, but also a detriment to ATM operators.

New ATM customers would be unlikely to want to submit to an ID Verification process.

-Lucas V. Clemente